

TOVA
*artistic projects
for social change*

presents

HOLDING UP

A NEW PRISON LEGACY

Friday, March 30th 7:00 pm

Broad Street Ministry
320 S. Broad St. Philadelphia

Admission is Free

This event is the premiere event of the conference, Locked Up: Keys to Prison Change

Holding Up is a new Theater of Witness production that explores the connections between fathers, sons and husbands locked up in prison, and the children and women left behind to maintain family and community. Based on the true stories and performances of men incarcerated at SCI-Graterford, the production is performed by former prisoners and women and children with incarcerated loved ones.

Conceived, Written and Directed by Teya Sepinuck.

Music by Dan Kleiman. Video by Rachel Libert.

Photography Exhibit by Howard Zehr.

For Information and Reservations Call TOVA 215.222.8682

Holding Up is a vital component of The Blueprint for a Safer Philadelphia, a ten-year initiative to end the cycle of violence in Philadelphia. Holding Up is supported by the Mid Atlantic Arts Foundation with an Artists & Communities grant, which is made possible by major funding from the Heinz Foundation, the William Penn Foundation and the Pennsylvania Council of the Arts.

MID ATLANTIC
ARTS FOUNDATION

Holding Up was created in partnership with the Pennsylvania Prison Society and the Public Safety Initiative of Lifer's Inc. at SCI-Graterford.